Taxpayers Win!!! Trade Promotion Authority Passage in U.S. House a Victory for Consumers, Taxpayers

The fate of Trade Promotion Authority (TPA) now moves to the Senate, where Tom Daschle threatens to stall it.

WASHINGTON — The U.S. House of Representatives today passed the most important tax cut legislation of the next decade – and it's not the much-anticipated economic stimulus package.

Today's vote would give the president trade promotion authority (TPA), formerly known as "fast track." Granted by Congress to each of America's last five Presidents, TPA allows trade negotiators to hammer out trade agreements with other nations. With negotiations in place, Congress can then vote "up or down" on the agreement, accepting or rejecting – but not amending – the negotiations. This ensures that negotiators will strike agreements that have broad political and public support, and are not tailored to special interests requests. Of 130 trade agreements currently in place around the globe, the United States is a partner in only three, with Israel, Jordan, and NAFTA.

Taxpayer advocate Grover Norquist, who heads Americans for Tax Reform, issued the following statement:

"This is by far the most important vote of the Bush Administration, and if Tom Daschle gives it a chance to pass the Senate, TPA will be the most significant tax cut legislation of the decade. It will create millions of jobs, boost the financial markets, secure democratic governments throughout the Western Hemisphere, reduce the pressures of mass immigration, and give the president a powerful tool to reward those nations who support us in the fight against terrorism and punish those who are slow to aid us.

"Tariffs are taxes – invisible ones on all consumers. And with 880 million South American consumers begging to buy American goods, but inhibited due to tariffs in their countries, this legislation couples as the greatest economic stimulus we can ask for. Opening foreign markets is a trademark of American foreign policy.

"American businesses and workers are the best in the world, and we can compete in any market across the globe. TPA will enable the creation of a hemispheric market stretching from the Bering Strait to the Tierra del Fuego – the greatest free trade zone in the history of civilization. I heartily encourage the U.S. Senate, and especially Senator Daschle, to take up this legislation as soon as possible to free up foreign markets and promote democracy around the world."
